

Back to Frank Black is a campaign built by fans of the hit FOX TV show Millennium to return the show's protagonist, criminal profiler Frank Black, played by Hollywood actor Lance Henriksen, to our screens.

The campaign has support from throughout the entertainment industry and has active involvement from Lance Henriksen himself. Millennium producers Glen Morgan and James Wong support the campaign, and composer Mark Snow and director Tom Wright have regularly contributed to the campaign's content. Frank Black and Millennium's creator Chris Carter has told the campaign he'd be very interested in revisiting the character and the Millennium world, as has executive producer Frank Spotnitz.

Other regular supporters of Back to Frank Black include the leading show's leading ladies, Kristen Cloke, Klea Scott, Sarah Jane Redmond and Megan Gallagher plus a range of entertainment specialists including acclaimed horror writer John Kenneth Muir, writer and producer Joe Maddrey and movie director Brett Hart.

All believe that Frank Black and his world have a place in the entertainment of today.

BACK TO FRANK BLACK

Back to Frank Black started in 2007. After seeing Lance Henriksen, Chris Carter and Frank Spotnitz all highlight an interest in the character's return, fans of Millennium looked to support this call for Frank Black's return by launching a campaign to bring him back to the screens.

Back to Frank Black focuses on encouraging fans to speak up and show their interest in Frank's return. Back to Frank Black has been given coverage on national radio, magazines across the world, through horror conventions and a whole range of websites and blogs, all showing interest in the character's return.

www.BacktoFrankBlack.com reaches Millennium and Frank Black fans from all across the world. The largest proportions stem from the USA, Canada, England and Europe. Frank Black is a character that has international appeal.

The spin-off Millennium Group Sessions podcast has had a range of stars from the lead actors, producers and creators, to the guest stars, to people from the industry and fandoms. It is available on iTunes and as a iPhone app.

WHY FRANK BLACK?

Frank Black was a character that was unique to television, offering a protagonist that was arguably ahead of his time. He is one of the few mature and sensitive heroes television has to offer: a man exposed to the horrors of man and the prospects of evil itself as well as a loving father, and once devoted husband.

He is a character that forces himself to face the bleak, daunting world around us, touches it, but never for glory or adventure, simply because its the only way he feels he can protect those who are special to us. Frank Black is a hero who coldly faces the horrors and threats but also embraces the love and the wonder to be found in our world. In these uncertain times, Frank Black is a hero that is as relevant now as he was a decade ago.

WHO IS LANCE HENRIKSEN?

Lance Henriksen (born May 5, 1940) is an American actor, painter, and potter. A versatile and prolific performer, his trademarks as an actor are his deep, gravelly voice, piercing stare and chiseled, weathered features.

Lance has had an extensive career in film and television. He is famously known for his role as "Bishop" in Aliens.

Henriksen's performances on Millennium earned him critical acclaim, a People's Choice Award nomination for Favorite New Male TV Star, and three consecutive Golden Globe nominations for Best Performance by an Actor in a TV Series (1997-1999).

Lance is the current voice of the Droid campaign for Verizon.

Is there a market for Frank?

- Fans of both Millennium and Lance Henriksen are predominantly from eight of the largest cinema attending countries in the world.
- In 2009, a group of film investors contacted Lance Henriksen with the offer of a sizable investment in any future production that would spotlight Frank Black .
- Shows like Medium, Dexter, Criminal Minds and Supernatural are all current television productions that carry similar attributes to Millennium. Criminal investigation shows like CSI still remain popular as well indicating an interest in the themes that surround the character Frank Black.
- Lance Henriksen remains a very popular genre actor. His movies have taken $2bn at the worldwide box office across his career.
- It would also appeal heavily to the 25-34 age group (particularly given the runaway success of the recent TV series, CSI), who account for 35% of all cinema-goers;
- The primary target audience for the movie would be 35-65 year-olds who represent the fastest growing cinema-going and DVD-buying audience;
- Support for The X-Files is still very strong and Millennium benefits from a crossover audience appeal due to the involvement of Chris Carter and Ten Thirteen Productions.
- Millennium was and remains very highly regarded in the industry. During its time on the air, it garnered a number of awards and nominations, including the following:
- Three Golden Globe nominations for Best Performance by an Actor in a TV-Series – Drama for Lance Henriksen, one for every year the show was on the air
- A People’s Choice Award nomination for Favorite Television New Dramatic Series
- Four American Society of Cinematographers nominations for Outstanding Achievement in Cinematography
- Three Canadian Society of Cinematographers awards for Best Cinematography in a TV Series
- A Young Artist Award and three further nominations for Best Performance in a TV Comedy/Drama - Supporting Young Actress for Brittany Tiplady
